

FUSCO & MACALUSO

CRIMINAL LAW

What about Domestic Violence?

Domestic Violence cases are more aggressively prosecuted than ever before.

Larger funding of police and prosecutors from special interest groups devoted to the causes of domestic violence account for the special focus in our society. In domestic violence calls a strict group of guides and laws apply which requires police to arrest a husband or a wife or a boyfriend or a girlfriend, if one or the other has any visible injury.

If you have been arrested for domestic violence, you must call Fusco & Macaluso who will immediately assign a professional investigator to interview you and, if possible, your domestic partner and any children, relatives, friends or neighbors who may have witnessed the incident.

Fusco & Macaluso's Team will set up an interview with your domestic partner at the very earliest opportunity. Quite often, the domestic partner will admit in a sworn statement as false or grossly exaggerated but which was motivated anger at the time of the incident.

Fusco & Macaluso can quickly present sworn statements to domestic violence prosecutors and save you extra problems in the court system, before a decision is made to file criminal charges against you.

While quickly consulting the professional investigators and Legal Team of Fusco & Macaluso, you may not only avoid a prosecution or defer it until another investigation can be conducted, but this charge may result in no charges being issued.

If charges are finally issued, notwithstanding sworn statements submitted on your behalf, it is beneficial to your case in the fact that Fusco & Macaluso has made an early showing of strength that can lead to help us prepare a strong trial defense.

Your freedom and record are too important to entrust to an inexperienced attorney.
